Chocolate
I love it!

We often forget about the importance of everyday things.
These things are a part of our life, and we forget that they were once new.
We also forget that they can be changed, and be used in new ways.

Its time to look again at the seductive world of Chocolate.

What is is?

Where is it?

Who eats it?

Why is it there?

How can we change it?

Morning session:

Chichester Chocolate Survey

Good design starts with observation.

Where is chocolate? Where can you find it? What does it look like?

Is it just a bar, is it a drink, is it more?

What does it cost? What forms does it take?

At this stage we are gathering as much information as we can.

10.30

Go forth with a notebook, camera and find chocolate...

Take photos of chocolate spots, and individual chocolate items.

11.30

Back to Oxmarket to make a chocolate map of Chichester.

Sketch key areas, interesting types of chocolate.
